

Universal Scaling Relations in Strongly Anisotropic Magnets

A. Praz, Condensed Matter Theory Group, Paul Scherrer Institut

We consider the critical temperature in strongly anisotropic antiferromagnetic materials, with weak coupling between stacked planes, in order to determine the interplane coupling constant from experimentally measured susceptibilities. We present theoretical arguments for a universal relation between interplane coupling and susceptibility.